

You might find that these situations make you feel very distressed, panicked and anxious. You may avoid some situations altogether. This can affect your day-to-day life.

Agoraphobia can make it difficult to visit your GP to talk about your symptoms or to attend appointments for therapy. We will work with you to find a way for you to attend therapy appointments which may include initial treatment at your own home.